

Cold Weather Monitoring Procedure

Working in the extreme cold can lead to a variety of cold-related illnesses, including potentially deadly hypothermia. Failure to protect your own workers from these ailments can result not only in fatalities and serious injuries but also OHS violations. Keeping a close eye on weather conditions is one of the measures you can and should use to protect workers from cold stress. Here's a Model Weather Monitoring Procedure you can adapt for your own use.