

Nov. 24: Young Worker Electrocuted after Contacting Power Lines

A 25-year-old worker was electrocuted after unintentional contact with overhead high-voltage electrical distribution lines by excavation equipment being used to dig holes for new electrical poles. He was rushed to the hospital, but later pronounced dead. The MOL is investigating the incident.