

Nov. 26: Scoop Operator Killed at Mine

A scoop operator at Musselwhite Mine was working underground when he was killed by an 'unexpected fall-of-rock.' The mining company dispatched first responders immediately and initiated search and rescue operations, but the scoop was entirely covered with material. The company suspended operations at the mine until authorities finish their investigation.