

Prime Contractors: Four Steps to Avoid Liability for OHS Violations Committed by Prime Contractors and Constructors – Special Report

The document provides a comprehensive guide for prime contractors and site owners on navigating occupational health and safety (OHS) compliance complexities. It discusses the impact of a recent Supreme Court of Canada ruling on the distribution of OHS responsibilities, emphasizing the importance of due diligence and effective safety management strategies. The guide outlines a four-step plan for prime contractors to mitigate risks and liabilities, highlighting the need for continuous education, technology adoption, and the cultivation of a safety-first culture. It serves as a valuable resource for improving workplace safety and compliance.