

Printing Company Fined $32,500 for Machine Guarding Violation

A worker making adjustments to a corner cutting machine for laminated boards cut his hand on the blade and suffered serious injuries. The employer was fined $32,500 for one WSH violation, presumably failure to ensure that the blade was properly guarded [Friesens Corporation, Government News Release, November 20, 2020].