

Supervisor Due Diligence and Enforcement Readiness Toolkit

Safety compliance has changed. It's no longer just about having policies on file or checking boxes once a year. Today, safety leaders are expected to interpret evolving legislation, anticipate enforcement expectations, support supervisors in real time, and defend decisions after the fact. That pressure often lands on one person's desk, with very little margin for error.

OHS Insider exists to make that job more manageable. Members use it as a daily support system for navigating legislation, building defensible policies, understanding how courts and inspectors actually interpret safety failures, and getting expert guidance when the right answer matters. Instead of guessing, searching, or hoping, you get clarity, confidence, and practical tools you can use immediately.

This resource gives you a clear look at how OHS Insider supports safety professionals across Canada and why so many rely on it to reduce risk, save time, and feel more confident in their role. Download it to see how the platform helps turn uncertainty into informed, defensible decisions.