The Aging Workforce in Canada

The number of older workers in Canada is on the rise. In five years, nearly one in four workers could be aged 55 years or over. What does this demographic trend mean for organizations that want to keep their workers healthy and safe’

This infographic illustrates why older workers can be beneficial to an organization, and what workplaces can do to ensure that they stay healthy and safe on the job, keeping in mind that a well-designed, well-organized workplace benefits everyone, regardless of age. (Source: CCOHS)